Neenah Man Fatally Hurt in Crash Near Pine Lake

THREE DROWN

Six Others Die in Traffic Mishaps; One in Fall From Roof

Eleven persons were killed in accidents in Wisconsin over the weekend, seven, including a Neenah man, losing their lives in automobile accidents, according to the Associated Press.

Harvey Hausen, 33, 526 N. Commercial street, Neenah, was injured fatally when the car he was driving struck the railing of a bridge at Pine lake on Highway 101 near Pine lake, Florence county, early Sunday morning.

Hausen was taken to the Iron Mountain, Mich., General hospital where he died. Florence county police, it was reported here, said that the man apparently had fallen asleep while driving.

The damaged bridge, sagging over a foot in the middle, was closed to heavy traffic, a contract for a new span having been awarded last week. The automobile was demolished. Hausen had been staying at his cottage at Pine lake.

Survivors are his foster father, Al Hausen, Neenah; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Solomon, 333 Fifth street, Neenah; and four brothers, George, Paul and Earl Solomon, Neenah, and James Solomon, Menasha.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Pelton Funeral home, Neenah, with the Rev. S. H. Roth, pastor of the St. Paul's English Lutheran church in charge. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery. Masonic rites will be held at the cemetery. The body will be at the funeral home Tuesday afternoon until time of services.

One of the weekend accident victims, a 2-year-old girl, was injured fatally when run over by the automobile of her father as he backed out of a garage.

Three drownings and injuries suffered in a fall accounted for the other deaths.

Collide in Fog

Mrs. Bartlett and Mrs. Rusch were killed early Sunday when cars driven by Harold Bartlett, husband of one victim, and Norbert Coopman, 33, of Oconto Falls, collided in fog on the east city limits of Oconto Falls. Coopman was injured critically.

In the car driven by Bartlett were his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Rusch. Bartlett, Rusch, 32, and Coopman were taken to Oconto Falls hospital. Coopman's passengers were Maxine Wilson, 20, of Underhill, also in Oconto Falls hospital, and Everett Housner, 25, taken to Wisconsin General hospital at Madison. Coroner J. S. Dougherty called an inquest.

The Olivares boy, son of Mexican parents, drowned Sunday in a pool of water three feet deep near the family home at Quarry. 14 miles west of Manitowish. The parents and three of their six children were away harvesting beets.

The Brown boy drowned Sunday when he slipped from the Onalaska dam across Black river.

Film Burns; Patrons File From Theater In Orderly Fashion

Weyauwega—About 100 patrons at the Gerold Opera house fled out of the building in orderly fashion when the film of the motion picture being shown caught fire about 9:15 Saturday evening.

Kenneth Peterson, manager, and the film operator, put out the fire in the projection room with fire extinguishers. About four films were destroyed and the machine damaged. It will be about a week before the machine can be repaired, Peterson said.

The fire occurred near the end of the first evening performance. The blaze was confined to the projection room and there was no sign of panic when the patrons were asked to leave the building.

5 Cents a Quart Milk Advocates For Relief Use

Hearing Opened on Proposed Chicago Milk Marketing Agreement

Chicago—(AP)—The government recommended a program which would provide milk at 5 cents a quart to relief clients when a department of agriculture hearing on a proposed Chicago milk marketing agreement opened today.

Paul L. Miller, chief agricultural economist for the department, outlined the plan for cutting the milk cost to relievers immediately after the presiding officer, Glen J. Gifford of Washington, began the hearing with a declaration that the department wanted "factual evidence, not hearsay."

Miller said five cent relief milk would be possible if these provisions were carried out: paying producers about $1.40 a hundredweight for milk sold to relief clients; payment of a contribution, subsidy or otherwise, by the federal government on each quart sold, and reducing processing and distributing charges.

In a proposal of the pure milk association for a marketing agreement in the Chicago market, selling 3,000,000 pounds of milk daily, the price base for class 1 or fluid milk would be a minimum of $1.80 a hundred, maximum $2.20.

Miller said that in May, 1939, there were 54,156 single persons and 57,659 families on relief in the Chicago market area, averaging $22.32 a month relief. He said the quantity of milk they bought was not known but it was evident, because of limited funds, that their consumption was relatively low.

Five cent milk, he contended, would enable relievers to consume a large volume, producers and handlers would benefit by increased sale, and surplus supplies in the market would be reduced. He said the plan could be effected through "cooperation of producers, handlers, labor and government."

Barns Levelled By $4,000 Fire

Two Buildings Destroyed By Flames at George H. Plamann Farm

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large barn and granary at the farm of George H. Plamann, route 4, Appleton, about 10 o'clock Saturday night. The loss is estimated at about $4,000.

Attempts to save the buildings were futile as the fire had gained too much headway before the neighbors, attracted by the flames, arrived. Members of the Plamann family discovered the fire after being awakened by the barking of their dog.

About 40 tons of baled hay and some straw, about 40 chickens and some farm machinery were destroyed. Among the machinery destroyed were a silo filler and two wagons.

The town of Freedom, in which the farm is situated, has no fire department.

Lee Randerson, Little Chute, is owner of the farm. The buildings were insured.

Issues Statement With Earl Long on 'Temporary' Postponement

ACTION IS SURPRISE

Cites 'Financial Irregularities' at Louisiana State University

Baton Rouge, La.—(AP)—Political leaders, gathered in expectation of seeing Lieutenant Governor Earl K. Long take over the governorship, sought an answer today to the sudden reversal of policy which caused Governor Richard W. Leche to withhold his resignation.

Leche called reporters last night to the executive mansion, heavily guarded by state police and issued a written statement that Dr. James Monroe Smith, president of Louisiana State University since 1930, had resigned his post and that preliminary

CROWN PRINCE

Robert C. Townsend (above), 28-year-old son of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the Townsend pension plan movement, was designated "crown prince" by the organization's convention meeting in Indianapolis. Delegates adopted a resolution endorsing Robert to succeed his father as head of the movement should the elder Townsend become unable to serve. Robert now is national secretary-treasurer.

Added Penalties Are Proposed for Espionage in U.S.

Spies Reported Busy as Result of National Defense Program

Washington—(AP)—Alarmed by reports that the nation's new defense program has brought a sharp increase in activities of foreign spies, congress is preparing legislation increasing the penalties on all forms of espionage.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) said today early senate action would be sought on a bill approved by the senate naval affairs committee to increase the prison term for espionage from two to ten years. The house already has passed a similar bill.

The house judiciary committee is considering a bill penalizing attempts to interfere with military discipline. It would provide for licensing of civilian military organizations and the fingerprinting of aliens.

Other Pending Bills
Two other measures of this nature were pending before the senate military committee. One would regulate activities of private military forces and the other would prohibit military drill by individuals wearing uniforms or insignia resembling those of foreign governments.

Senator Walsh said the navy committee would delay for about a week consideration of a resolution calling for a senate investigation of "widespread evidence of espionage and sabotage in the United States."

Medberry, Facing Life Sentence, May Demand New Trial

Akron, Colo.—(AP)—A new trial may be asked for Ellsworth E. Medberry, 22, Wisconsin hitch-hiker convicted of murdering a motorist who gave him a ride.

A jury of farmers returned a verdict of first degree murder Saturday and recommended the Fond du Lac youth be sent to prison for life for slaying John T. Gray, Jr., 32, Colorado Springs salesman.

Medberry, a former altar boy, contended Gray was shot accidentally when they struggled in a rural school garage last March.

Medberry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Medberry of Fond du Lac, indicated they would ask for a new trial or appeal.

The parents, with the youth's aunt, Mrs. Louis Johnson and her son Lawrence of Waupaca, Wis., expected to leave for home today.

Garner Scores Some Parts of Lending Plan

Reported 'Sharply Critical' of Portions of Roosevelt Program

LEADERS AT CONFAB

Republicans Demand Half Billion Dollar Cut in Expenses

Washington—(AP)—Vice President Garner was described by friends today as "sharply critical" of some phases of President Roosevelt's $3,880,000,000 lending program, although they said he does not intend to oppose it actively.

The exact features which drew Garner's objections were not made known. His views were learned while congressional leaders tried to prevent impending battles over two sections of the program—loans to foreign countries and leasing of railroad equipment.

Because of bi-partisan opposition, administration leaders were said to be eager to carry out as much of the program as possible without new legislation.

Clerks were drafting in one bill all the legislative authority which leaders believe necessary. It will be introduced in both senate and house tomorrow or Wednesday, and will be rushed to the floor after brief committee hearings.

Foreign Loans Rapped
The proposal to let the Export-Import lend $500,000,000 in the next two years to promote trade with foreign governments brought criticism in the senate Saturday from Senators Borah (R-Idaho), Taft (R-Ohio) and Lucas (D-Ill.).

As a result of criticism the foreign loan project may not be mentioned in the bill. Administration leaders were studying the possibility that both these loans and creation of a new corporation to buy and lease equipment to American railroads could be carried out under present RFC lending powers.

A Republican demand for a $500,000,000 cut in federal expenses was received in congress today while administration leaders were trying to rush through new relief and farm funds before the fiscal year ends Friday night.

Representative Martin (R-Mass.), the house minority leader, completed a bill providing for a 10 per cent reduction in all "properly susceptible" appropriations. He excluded such items as "relief of distressed areas."

Inquest Is Held in Mysterious Slaying Of Detroit Promoter

Lansburg, Mich.—(AP)—Investigation of the mysterious slaying of George C. Hall, 59-year-old Detroit promoter, started today on a coroner's inquest as law enforcement officers of three counties continued their search for a scar-faced hitch-hiker accused of the killing.

Chief witness at the inquest, to be held this afternoon in the town hall of this small Shiawassee county village, will be Miss Ruby Doty, 32-year-old divorcee who was with Hall when he was shot to death Thursday on a lonely road near here. Miss Doty reported the slaying to police.

Other witnesses at the inquest will include Roy Watkins, a drifter employed by Hall, and state police who found Hall's body, a bullet wound in the back in a ditch three miles south of here, a day after Miss Doty reported he was killed by a hitch-hiker they picked up a few miles east of Grand Rapids.

Accepts Resignation Submitted by Kluefer

Madison—(AP)—Director Ralph Ammon announced today he had accepted the resignation of Harry Kluefer from the state department of agriculture and markets with which he had been connected nearly 33 years.

Kluefer will retire from the department Aug. 1, Ammon said, but will work in the dairy department of the state fair, of which he is superintendent, until the fair ends.

Buckner Denies Mail Fraud And Conspiracy Charges at Federal Trial in New York

New York—(AP)—Debonair and apparently confident, William P. Buckner, Jr., playboy promoter and friend of numerous Hollywood celebrities, took the witness stand in federal court today to defend himself against charges of mail fraud and conspiracy.

Buckner, nephew of Thomas A. Buckner, president of the New York Life Insurance company, said he worked in the insurance company's law department for several years after his graduation from Fordham law school in 1932, and on Jan. 1, 1937, entered the securities business, working on a commission basis.

On Feb. 26, 1937, he said, he attended a meeting of holders of the Philippine railway bonds.

"Did you know anything about Philippine railway bonds at that time?" asked his attorney, John Minton.

Senate Would End Roosevelt Power To Devalue Dollar

Bar Association Committee Raps Judges in Report

Finds They are Often 'Carelessly Lenient' Or 'Biased'

Annapolis, Md.—(AP)—An investigating committee of the American Bar association reported today judges are too frequently "carelessly lenient," "biased," play "hunches," and follow practices "deserving of censure" in disposing of criminal cases.

"On the whole a very unsatisfactory job of determining what treatment should be imposed upon those convicted of crime is being done by most judges," state and federal, the committee on sentencing, probation, prisons and parole found.

Released by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor, a committee member, the report scored jurists as "deserving of censure" for a willingness to compromise cases if the defendant pleads guilty to save the state trial costs and time.

Find Other Abuses
Other judicial abuses cited: "Far too many judges are carelessly lenient in disposing of cases involving youthful first offenders," frequently placing them on probation into "the custody of their parents or relatives who have demonstrated a lack of control over them."

Sentencing records of many judges, as well as their own statements, show the presence of "personal biases."

The "hunch" system of sentencing "admittedly adopted by many judges cannot be justified as a substitute for a thorough study of the individual."

The group recommended that criminal court judges "need more specialized training in those sciences that are making significant contributions to the study of human behavior if they are to exercise a dominant power in determining what treatment shall be given to persons convicted of crime."

Columnist Beaten, Tarred, Feathered

Two Waive Hearings on Assault Charges in Virginia Court

Warrenton, Va.—(AP)—Count Igor Cassini, young writer of a chit-chat column for a Washington newspaper, said today he was beaten and threatened with mutilation by five or six young men who later tarred and feathered him early Sunday morning after a Saturday night dance at the exclusive Warrenton Country club.

Count Cassini, whose mother was the daughter of a former Russian ambassador to the United States, swore out warrants for Ian Montgomery, Colin Montgomery and Alexander Calvert last night, charging they constituted a mob and committed an assault upon him.

Ian Montgomery and Calvert appeared before Trial Justice E. Richards Glascock this morning and waived hearings to the September term of the Fauquier county grand jury which meets the fourth Monday in September.

Justice Glascock ordered the two young men, both socialites, held under bond of $2,500 pending the September term. Both made bond. W. H. Robertson, who appeared as counsel for the pair, waived the hearing and announced that he would waive hearing for Colin Montgomery, who he said was in Baltimore.

The trial Justice said Colin Montgomery would appear before him next Monday.

The columnist, who said the young men told him they objected to recent items in his column, asserted he was lured outside the club while the dance was in progress.

Says Group Will Aid In Milk Price Battle

Manitowish—(AP)—Joseph Lemberger, Manitowish dairy farmer, said yesterday the Progressive Dairy Farmers' association of Manitowish county would assist financially in his forthcoming court battle with the state department of agriculture and markets.

A summons was served on Lemberger Saturday for selling milk at 5 cents per quart. Lemberger said the association would carry the case to the supreme court if necessary because it was convinced the law setting a milk price at 10 cents was invalid.

For 10 days, Lemberger has been selling 80 to 100 quarts of milk daily outside the city limits of Two Rivers. The 32-year-old farmer said "all the people are clamoring for milk at the reduced price."

He would continue to sell at his price, he said, "until driven away with guns."

Blind Man Arrested By Peoria Police for Driving Automobile

Peoria, Ill.—(AP)—The police had one for the record books today, the arrest of a blind man for driving an automobile.

Policemen Vern Robertson and Leo Mausebaugh vouched for this story: Harold Swords, 26, a blind man receiving a state blind pension, lives on the outskirts of East Peoria. Started neighbors reported they saw him driving a car near his home.

Robertson and Mausebaugh, when convinced it wasn't a joke, rushed out there. Sure enough, they found Swords driving an ancient jalopy down a quarter-mile stretch of little-used gravel road running from his home to a brick yard.

"I feel my way along," he said. "I like to run down to the brick yards to chit with the boys."

The astonished policemen hustled him down to the station. They said he had no auto license and, of course, no driver's license. They released him when he promised to drive no more.

Federal Money Is Reducing Powers Of States, Charge

New York Governor Defends Spending at Executives' Conference

Albany, N. Y.—(AP)—Assertion the federal government was using public works spending to "extend its powers into the states" and competing with private enterprise, brought New Deal support on the floor of the governor's conference today from Herbert H. Lehman, New York.

Immediately following the statement of Republican Governor Raymond E. Baldwin, Connecticut, Democratic Governor Lehman declared:

"We have not found that the federal spending program has been in competition with private enterprise. Generally speaking, I think the federal projects have real economic value and are for the most part a good investment."

Previously, Governor Baldwin had pointed to the large number of persons employed in WPA, NYA and other government work projects which are "administered out of Washington."

Said Governor Lehman: "There is no question that jobs in private enterprise are more to be desired than public works jobs, but we are facing an actuality. Private industry hasn't been able to give enough jobs to relieve unemployment. Pending such a time the federal and state governments will have to do this part."

Governors John W. Bricker, Ohio, and Robert L. Cochran, Nebraska, then discussed restrictions placed upon federal spending in their states.

Both governors said their legislatures had placed restrictions on the raising of local bonds for federal projects limiting the scope of such work so they would not compete with private enterprise.

Racetrack Workers Report They Were Robbed by 3 Gunmen

Joliet, Ill.—(AP)—Three robbers, reported to be armed with sawed-off shotguns and a machine-gun, held up three messengers from the Lincoln Fields race track today and escaped with an estimated $6,000. The robbery occurred on a highway near Crete, Ill.

The messengers, Paul Warner, Bruce Rank and John Rankin, told authorities they were proceeding to Chicago Heights when the gunmen waylaid them at a viaduct between Crete and Steger.

Two of the robbers carried machine-guns, they said, and warned them to "sit quiet and nothing will happen, just live us the money."

The gunman took the key to the messengers' car and sped away in their own sedan. All three were dark-complexioned, the messengers said.

Favors 77.57 Cents Per Ounce for Domestic Silver

VIGOROUS FIGHT

Vote Is 47 to 31 for Amendment Restricting Authority

Washington—(AP)—The senate approved today a price of 77.57 cents an ounce for domestically-mined silver after voting to wipe out President Roosevelt's authority to devalue the dollar further.

The treasury now is paying 64.64 cents an ounce for domestically-mined silver under provisions of a proclamation which expires June 30.

Action to cut off Mr. Roosevelt's authority to devalue the dollar came on an amendment to eliminate devaluation power from pending monetary legislation.

The silver price was voted 48 to 30. The vote to eliminate the devaluation power was 74 to 31.

The senate was considering a monetary bill already passed by the house, which had approved an extension of the president's authority over the dollar. The final form of the legislation probably will be written by joint conference committees of the two chambers.

Administration supporters waged a vigorous fight against the amendment, which was offered by Senator Adams (D-Colo.). The administration group argued that the devaluation power was necessary to prevent damage to United States trade if other countries depreciated their currency.

Washington—(AP)—The senate rejected today a proposal to fix the treasury's prices for domestically-mined silver at $1.16 an ounce. The vote was announced as 32 to 26.

The treasury now is paying 64.64 cents an ounce for the white metal, but a proclamation fixing that rate will expire on June 30.

The proposal to fix the rate at $1.16 an ounce was offered by Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) as an amendment to legislation continuing the administration's emergency monetary powers for two years. These powers, scheduled to expire June 30, permit the treasury to operate the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and to pay a bounty price for domestically-mined silver. They also authorize the president to devalue the dollar further.

Western senators, seeking an increase in the present silver price, have been holding up the bill by lengthy speechmaking and have created anxiety among administration followers that the monetary powers may lapse.

Agreement Endangered
Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader, said today that if the power were not extended the United States would be unable to carry out its part of the tri-power monetary agreement with France and Great Britain.

Although the vote on Pittman's amendment cleared away one major controversy, Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) told reporters that "full discussion" of the monetary legislation would be continued.

Committees on Capitol Hill went ahead with other work.

Two members of the interstate commerce commission testified in support of legislation to prevent railroads to spend their money for any but railroad purposes, except with I. C. C. approval. They said some financial practices in the past had hurt the carriers.

Nathan Straus, asking that the United States Housing authority be permitted to double its $500,000,000 loan limit, told the house banking committee that otherwise "a substantial interruption in employment and construction" was sure.

John W. O'Leary of the United States Chamber of Commerce contended before a senate labor subcommittee that the national labor board had been "active in supporting strikes." He said amendments to the labor act were imperative.

Chairman Scruggs (D-Nev.) called a meeting of the house Democratic steering committee for this afternoon to discuss the administration's neutrality bill which is scheduled to come up tomorrow.

Administration leaders said the committee's reports might guide them in offering minor amendments to eliminate phraseology objectionable to some groups.

Heil Approves Changes In Compensation Law
Madison—(AP)—Governor Heil has approved revisions of the state unemployment compensation law that assure continuance of federal grants and make miscellaneous adjustments.

The bill was among a dozen measures signed by the chief executive late Saturday.

Before submitting it for signature, the legislature had rejected certain recommendations of the advisory committee, including extension of insurance coverage to groups of less than six employees. The law was unchanged on this major provision.

Rain Slows Hunt For Ray Olson in Hayward District

Fugitive Believed to Have Killed Deer to Obtain Food

Hayward, Wis. —(AP)—A steady rain today dampened the ardor of possemen seeking Ray Olson, slayer of two deputy sheriffs, and made an almost impenetrable morass of the swampy area near here where the killer was believed to have taken refuge.

Bloodhounds, which Olson had been able to throw off his trail during the 12-day hunt, were taken off the search and returned to La-Crosse, Wis., by their owner, George Brooks.

Rain drove some of the army of 200 possemen indoors, but guards continued to post all roads, resorts and stores in the vicinity and a cordon of armed men was strung out along the edge of the swamp not far from Olson's northwood's shack.

Sheriff George Seehuetter was convinced Olson was bottled up in the area of about 25 square miles, north of the Chippewa flowage. He asserted that if Olson, driven by hunger, did not appear at daybreak, the posse would go in and get him before nightfall.

Ate Raw Meat?

Olson was believed to have killed and dressed out a deer which deputies discovered at nightfall yesterday.

Seehuetter said it was evident Olson had killed the deer because no poacher would try it while the area was overrun with possemen. Olson was sighted on a bridge Saturday but escaped as five shots were fired at him.

The spot where the dressed carcass was found is about 23 miles from Olson's shack. Deputies hazarded that he must have eaten the meat raw, since he scarcely would risk detection by building a fire.

Seehuetter declared there was no way for Olson to escape. Special guards were placed on bridges. The sheriff's force was the largest yesterday it has been since the hunt began.

Olson, a former convict, eluded a highway officer June 15 when being questioned about a car theft, and shot and killed Deputies Carl Johnson and Fred Scott two days later as they sought to arrest him.

Democratic Chief Sees Coalition of 2 Badger Parties

Michigan Senator Says 'Seed Is Planted and Will Bear Fruit'

Washington —(AP)—Senator Brown (D-Mich.) believes the prospects are good for a coalition of Democrats and Progressives in Wisconsin for the campaign wars of 1940.

Brown, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, preceded two cabinet members of the national Democratic administration to the home of the Progressives.

The latest visitors to Wisconsin were Attorney General Frank Murphy and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Commenting informally on the outlook for the get-together of Democrats and Progressives, Brown said he believed the "seed is planted and will bear fruit."

The idea has been "well received" by Wisconsin Democrats, said the campaign chairman, pointing out that the total votes cast in the Democratic and Progressive ranks exceeded the Republican vote in 1938.

Opposes Farm Taxes

Any proposal for specific farm taxes to meet the cost of the annual agricultural department appropriation bill was opposed in the house recently by Representative Hull (R-Wis.).

Replying to suggestions by Representatives Woodrum (D-Va.) and Taber (R-N.Y.) that no more farm payments be made unless specific taxes were provided, Hull said that the appropriation for parity payments and surplus commodity purchases alone was about as much as that for three battleships.

"I failed to note any protest about battleships threatening the budget out of line or a proposal for tax to meet battleship costs," Hull declared.

The Wisconsin point of view that the departmental appropriation bill contained non-farm items in which classification he listed the funds for the forestry division, biological survey, weather bureaus and others.

The total amount in the bill for farmers is not as much as the increased amount appropriated this year for the army and navy," he said. "These increases over army-navy appropriations of last year are about a billion dollars more than all the payments made to farmers if this report is adopted."

Lewis to be Consulted On Unifying State CIO

Milwaukee —(AP)—The CIO United Automobile Workers' union executive board Saturday voted to place before John L. Lewis the problem of unifying the Wisconsin state CIO, complicated by opposition of some CIO locals to present state leadership.

A committee including F. J. Michel and Lawrence Carlstrom, Racine, was appointed to go to Washington, D. C., to confer with Lewis, and report back to the membership here July 9.

North Shore's 10th Tee Is Scene of a Royal Gathering

Royal visitors nearly disrupted Sunday's golfing activities at the North Shore Golf club.

A queen bee and her following swept majestically over the course Sunday morning and settled, with a noble flourish, into the branches of a pleasant elm tree near the 10th tee.

Their high-pitched hum unnerved golfers and frightened caddies. The golfing clan tried to bluff the bees out of their position by going "shoo," like one would at a flock of trespassing chickens. The queen and her retinue remained serene.

Then the golfers and caddies tried curtsies and soft persuasion. Still the queen wouldn't abdicate.

Finally, when it appeared the tee might have to be abandoned, the golfers suggested that someone go to the Nick Bruhl farm nearby. Mr. Bruhl, the caddy said, understood bees.

Subsequently, Mr. Bruhl appeared on the scene. It wasn't very long before he had coaxed the queen and her followers into a hive filled with waxed frames.

Golfers and caddies, the elm tree emptied of its royal gathering, continued their game.

Young Socialists Voice Disapproval Of Citizenship Day

Milwaukee —(AP)—The Wisconsin district convention of the Young People's Socialist league expressed disapproval yesterday of the youth citizenship day programs in Wisconsin "as disguised attempts to indoctrinate youth for another holy crusade, a possible Roosevelt world war for democracy."

"As youths' plight becomes increasingly desperate, all that is offered is the opportunity to participate in marching organizations, drum and bugle corps, citizenship days and vague organizations and programs for the preservation of a so-called 'democracy,'" the resolution said.

Jack Cohn Waukesha, was elected chairman of the district committee. Others chosen are Andrew Van Hazing, Kenosha, district secretary; Roger Bybee, Racine, and William Sullivan, Ahnapee, Mich., committee members.

Heil Still Hopes To Abolish 3-Man Road Commission

Seek to Change Two Votes Before New Bill Comes Up Wednesday

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison —How keenly Gov. Heil and his Republican administration felt their defeat last week when they failed to prevent rejection of the highway reorganization bill was evidenced over the weekend by the intensive lobbying efforts to which recalcitrant Republicans and Democrats who caused the defeat were being subjected at the hands of administration supporters.

Tremendous pressure was being exerted at the weekend on two members of the state senate, especially Senator Mike Mack of Shiocton, a Republican, and Senator Francis Yindra of Manitowoc, a member of the Democratic-Republican legislative coalition who has shown an inclination for independence lately.

Although the highway reorganization measure, which has kept the senate in a parliamentary bog for more than two weeks and has delayed action on scores of other important bills was defeated last week by a vote of 18 to 15, administration circles at the weekend were confident that they could force a reconsideration of that action and carry the day when the matter comes up again Wednesday morning.

Need Two Votes

If the administration can change two votes on the opposition side, it will have enough to pass the bill, it was pointed out.

One of those expected to be won over, according to administration reports, is Senator Kenneth S. White of River Falls, a Republican, whose negative vote was interpreted as an expression of pique at the Heil teachers' college budget which he fought unsuccessfully to enlarge.

Many persons believed that the introduction by Republicans of a resolution authorizing an investigation of the feasibility of a state-owned and operated cement plant, always in previous years a Socialists-sponsored measure—was an attempt to whip the cement interests into line behind the reorganization bill.

Others pointed out, however, that it could also be a lever to lessen opposition of the cement lobbyists against the highway diversion proposed in the newest revenue bill submitted by the Heil office.

Because of its potential effects on the whole state highway system, state, county and local, the highway reorganization bill has been the keystone of the reorganization program and the focal point of public interest thus far. Moreover, it is a matter having profound political angles, because of the presence of the present commission of high ranking Progressives.

There were reliable reports at the weekend also that the LaFollette headquarters office had discouraged an attempted treaty between senate Progressives and the administration in which they wanted to agree to pass the highway reorganization bill if the public service commission reorganization measure could be killed or dropped in exchange. Such action, it was believed, was taken because high ranking LaFollette chiefs want to continue to control the highway department, and in addition are anxious to create a

Two Indian Bills Up for Passage

Murray and LaFollette Measures Get Senate Committee Approval

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington —The senate committee on Indian affairs, of which Sen. Robert M. LaFollette Jr., Madison Progressive, is a member, has favorably reported two bills dealing with Monominee Indians. Sen. LaFollette's bill, granting them compensation for injuries, and that of Rep. Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, providing for a new tribal enrollment.

The latter bill, which has passed the House, would accomplish the following purposes, according to the Senate report:

Permit the names of certain Menomonees who by mistake were not placed on the tribe roll to be placed there;

Permit children of enrolled members to be automatically placed on the roll as they are born;

Permit the correction of certain erroneous entries in the roll.

With minor amendments, the bill has the support of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, and will probably pass the Senate by unanimous consent.

Sen. LaFollette's measure would give employees of the Menominee mills the same protection afforded to other civil employees, and which they received until 1936 when the U. S. Employees Compensation Commission ruled in some injury cases that mill employees were not entitled to civil benefits.

This bill also has the approval of Secretary Ickes, and provides that any claim for disability or death which occurred before the enactment of the act can be filed within a year after the enactment.

Over 800 Scouts Attend Camporee At Clintonville

Nearly Forty Troops Represented at Tenth Annual Gathering

Clintonville —The largest camporee ever held in the Valley Council was held from Friday to Sunday at Central park in this city. More than 800 Boy Scouts and adult leaders from nearly forty troops were registered for the annual event.

Announcement of the awards was made Sunday morning by Clarence Engberg, executive of the Valley Council Boy Scouts of America, when the 16 honor troops of the camporee were named. These were: Troops 23, 24, and 30 of Clintonville; Troops 1, 8, and 12 of Appleton; Troop 7 of New London, Troop 31 of Kaukauna; Troop 42 of Embarras and Troop 43 of Neenah. These awards are based on general efficiency and represent the 10 outstanding troops at the camporee.

Woodcraft awards were also presented to Troops 23, 24 and 30 of Clintonville, which had constructed observation towers, bridges, picnic tables and a number of smaller structures. Troop 8 of Appleton and Troops 23 and 24 of Clintonville also received campcraft awards, which are based on merits of the wood projects and the general efficiency of the camp itself.

Three Wigwags Built

This year there was an assortment of new shelters and camp setups. Three troops had constructed Indian wigwags which were erected with brightly colored waterproof covering. Nearly every troop at the camporee displayed handicraft exhibits at its camp.

A large parade of Boy Scouts with music furnished by the Marion and Clintonville school bands took place at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A program around a large bonfire took place in the evening at the park athletic field. Talks were given by Mayor A. A. Washburn, who welcomed the scouts and leaders to Clintonville, by Max Stieg, general chairman of the camporee, by Clarence Engberg, council executive; and by Lloyd Pinkowsky, camporee director.

Several musical numbers were given and a number of awards were presented. These included the eagle badges to Lester Berndt of this city and to John Nepkins, Jr., of Appleton, and several star and life scout badges. Mr. Engberg was presented with a head belt by scouts of Troop 24 of this city, and a painted scene of Gardner dam was given to him by members of Troop 23. The program also included a pantomime and Indian dance put on by scouts from Troop 39 at Neenah, one of the newest troops in the council, whose membership includes Menominee Indians.

A special camporee newspaper was edited and distributed Sunday morning by Boy Scouts of Kaukauna Troop 31. A loud speaker system had been installed in the park by which instructions were broadcast to the hundreds of scouts during the camping period.

Soviet Russia Is Suspicious Of Chamberlain and Daladier In Mutual Assistance Talk

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York —(AP)—Russia's rejection of the latest Anglo-French proposals for a pact of mutual assistance to "halt Hitler" has drawn attention again to the soviet's suspicions of the intentions of the allied pair.

Some experienced observers believe that the chief doubts of the Muscovites are directed at the individual heads of the British and French governments—Premiers Chamberlain and Daladier. These observers even suggest that fresh advances from Paris and London would have a better chance for success if they didn't come from governments headed by this pair of statesmen.

A particular cloud would appear to hang about Britain's famous "man with the umbrella" and his much-debated policy of appeasement. The government of the septuagenarian prime minister, who is heralded as England's smartest business man, has been accused of trying to put across a sharp horse-deal with the soviet.

The Russian chief of state, Joseph Stalin, pinned the thing down specifically in one of his blunt declarations as long as March 11. He declared that the failure of "non-aggressor" countries like Britain and France to resist "fascist aggressors" wasn't due entirely to fear of revolution in their own territories.

Stalin's Summary

Underlying this policy of non-intervention, continued the soviet leader, was a desire to embroil Italy, Japan and Germany as deeply as possible in a war against the Soviet Union. Then, when they all had become weakened by conflict, to "come on the stage with fresh forces" and dictate peace.

Stalin dragged into conflict with Germany as a "cat's paw" to pull British and French chestnuts out of the fire. As recently as June 11 Soviet Premier Molotov referred in a speech to this declaration.

Whatever may have been in the minds of Premiers Chamberlain and Daladier, a good many people in both countries believed prior to the opening of negotiations with Russia for a pact that the soviet would indeed be involved in conflict with Germany and her allies.

The British approach to the soviet for an alliance is a complete turn-about in the English attitude towards Moscow. Ever since the inception of the communist government the "red menace" has been held up in Britain as a devouring dragon.

Produce 'Red Letter'

An example of this fear of bolshevism was seen in the historic general election of 1925. With the labor party apparently about to sweep it to power, the conservatives pulled great coup by producing the "red letter" alleged to have been written to British communists by Gregory Zinoviev, one of the communist leaders.

The late King George V never would have anything to do with communists, or receive their representative, because the czar, who was his cousin, and the Russian royal family were executed during the bolshevist revolution.

The British government raided the offices of the soviet trade mission in London, a steady barrage of anti-communist propaganda was maintained.

A fair amount of that feeling still persists, and Chamberlain's effort to make an agreement with Moscow finds many opponents, including some big business. He has proceeded cautiously. However, backing in parliament is strong enough. Even such severe critics as former Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, and the distinguished Winston Churchill, have lined up behind the premier.

Whatever may be the outcome of the negotiations there is no indication that either Chamberlain or Daladier expect to surrender the premiership to anyone else in the immediate future.

Thus far nobody has come forward to demonstrate that he is better man for the job than the 71-year-old man with the umbrella.

The exhibit will include a series of panels on the cause, prevention and cure of tuberculosis and a large spot map of Wisconsin showing where the deaths from tuberculosis occurred last year.

Sound motion pictures will be shown in the school building at 10 o'clock in the morning, 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7 o'clock in the evening. Assistants, with the movies will be members of the 4-H clubs, under the direction of Mrs. Emil Krueger; members of the Boy Scouts, directed by Carlisle Runge, Seymour; members of the Girl Scouts, directed by Doris Dean, Seymour.

The trailer unit will be at Kaukauna Wednesday, at Shiocton Thursday, and at Hortonville Friday. Mrs. Henry Olm is making the arrangements at Kaukauna, where the exhibit will be sponsored by the Women's club. At Hortonville Mrs. Steve Otis is making arrangements. The American Legion auxiliary will sponsor the display.

A field clinic will be held in connection with the exhibit. Modern methods of tuberculosis diagnosis will be employed. Arrangements for examinations may be made through county physicians.

Congress Should Take Only Short Recess—Lawrence

Whole Course of Recovery Depends on Time Of Adjournment

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The whole course of recovery, if not of public policy for the next several years, revolves around the question of whether congress shall adjourn shortly or whether it shall merely vote to take a recess until Sept. 15 and resume legislative work.

Business and industry as well as persons engaged in essential professions have no more than a two-week or 4-week holiday.

Yet the assumption in Washington is that the congress which has so much to do with the progress of business and industry and agriculture and banking and almost every other division of economic activity can go home in the midst of uncompleted tasks just because the summer heat may be approaching.

Physical discomfort and the desire for a vacation affects the business world for a few weeks a year, but it could be regarded as extremely retrogressive if someone were to propose the custom of six months' recesses. Members of congress insist that one of the principal reasons for adjournment is that they have an opportunity to go back home and talk with their constituents. Nowadays, however, with the developed habit of the telephone, the average member of congress is hardly out of touch.

Recess Meaning

What the recesses really mean is that members have a chance to build up their political organizations at home and sense what opposition may be arising to their candidacies. Such concern is understandable in normal times, but with 10,000,000 persons out of work, deficits higher than ever, and the world in a disturbed condition which makes it difficult to tell from one week to another whether a new crisis may not be emerging, the need for a virtually continuous session of congress transcends all personal and political considerations.

There used to be, and still is in some quarters, a belief that business is better when congress finishes certain stages of its work and goes home for awhile. But nowadays just the reverse is true. When congress goes home, the commissions and boards and departments to which congress has delegated vast legislative powers and the disbursement of huge sums begin to take over the whole governmental scene and there is no fear of congressional inquiry or the sudden passage of a joint resolution of restriction to interfere with the sweep of bureaucratic whimsicality.

Congress today has before it certain major tasks which it has neglected since the present session began in January. The problem of economic recovery has been complicated by the indifference of congress to the revision of existing laws dealing with social reform. When the last congressional elections in November, 1928, created the present congress, the general impression was that the New Deal had not, to be sure, been repudiated but had been held subject to revision and correction.

Needed Amendments

Some of the revisionary measures now have been adopted, but the principal laws which prevent the smooth operation of the economic system have been left untouched. Thus there are amendments to the Securities and Exchange act, Wagner Labor Relations law, and the wage and hour law, which, if made, would give business and industry a real stimulus. Public opinion wants such amendments made. Congress knows certain changes should be made. If these are at all justified, then the time for such changes to be made is without delay.

Congress has been in a waiting mood. In the absence of sharp pressure from the public on specific issues, there has been a tendency to drift and wait till the summer, 1940, session. But the country is suffering from maladjustments growing out of the extremes in the reform laws. The most vital defect in such legislation has been the vagueness of the standards or the omission of legislative standards in framing the laws.

Unless congress delegates in specific terms the powers it is supposed to exercise under the constitution, the effect is to turn over to bureaus and boards and commissions the law-making power. In this is the paramount defect of the centralized system of administration that has been built up in the reform era brought by the New Deal. That is why many persons sincerely say they favor the New Deal objectives but not the manner in which they have been executed.

Reveal Insincerity
There are politicians who profess the same thing but their insincerity is revealed by their transparent desire really to repeal all the New Deal measures. Naturally the New Deal itself is wary about any amendments. Between these two op-

Heil's Financial Aids Work Out Another Tax Bill, but It Has Small Chance for Passing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The third successive version of a Heil administration revenue bill in as many weeks today was given only slightly more chance of passing the legislature unchanged than the earlier tax measures which it replaces.

Harried Heil financial advisors who have been applying pencils to paper and ringing calculating machines for months today were visibly weary of the task of trying to compromise between public and political opinion which is cold to new state taxes of any kind and the record deficit arising out of low normal tax yields and an exceptionally high total of appropriations.

However, despite the announcement from the executive office that Revenue Bill No. 3 is final as far as it is concerned, preliminary legislative opinion make justifiable the prediction that the newest substitute will not pass because:

1. As an effort to satisfy both the "highway diversionists," who want to use highway funds instead of new taxes to balance the budget, and those who prefer "non-essentials" taxes to income taxes, the measure will probably satisfy neither.

2. Most of the opposition from outside the legislature to the original Heil tax bill came from the liquor and tobacco interests. That opposition will continue, because liquor and tobacco taxes remain in the latest bill.

3. Much of the opposition within the legislature came from the proposals to stiffen the burden of income tax payers. That will continue because the newest bill contemplates heavy exactions from the income taxpayers.

4. There is a strong element in the legislature, particularly in the senate where an independent substitute will be presented soon, which demands that cigarette taxation, highway fund diversion, present taxes, and rigid economy by emergency board orders, constitute the fiscal program of the Heil administration, rather than new taxes on incomes and commodities.

No Enthusiasm

The hesitation within the ranks of the administration on a revenue program which has been obvious in recent weeks was never more apparent than when the finance committee introduced its newest bill just after completing hearings on the previous proposal.

Heil's first tax suggestion was a general sales tax, which was to be coupled with a real estate tax reduction plan. That was thrown out by the legislature. He then shifted to a modified sales tax program.

There is no good reason for waiting till next January to do things which ought to be done at once for the benefit of the country as a whole—no good reason except a few individual conveniences and summer plans beside which the welfare of the nation is many thousand times more vital especially if it be true that governmental policies have had as much to do with delaying recovery as is commonly asserted. The Republicans have enough strength to insist on a recess instead of an adjournment. If they did nothing else this session, they would by such a step justify the protest vote which millions of citizens cast in their behalf in November 1938 when the verdict plainly was to correct and revise the hastily devised legislation of the preceding years.

which was designated as a "non-essentials tax."

When opposition grew too formidable, legislators decided to side-step that path also. Then the finance committee evolved its new bill, which will be taken up Thursday morning for action in the assembly, according to plans.

The newest revenue plan also illustrates a curious reversal of state politics in the last year or two. Not more than a year ago it was considered good politics to denounce road fund diversion. In the 1937 legislature the issue had the Progressives on the defensive constantly.

It was one of the many issues discussed in the 1938 election campaign, in which the Heil ticket was committed, at least informally, against any use of highway funds for anything except highways.

Replace Fund

Governor Heil, in his first speech to the legislature early in February recited the state's financial plight, due in large part, he alleged, to the fact that previous LaFollette administration's had allegedly used highway funds to make up shortages in the state's general treasury.

That deficit, he said, had grown to $35,000,000. He spoke of paying it back during his term.

When details of Heil's tax program began to leak out later in the session, however, and when it was apparent that the state budget was not to be as low as many persons expected, suggestions for legal and open diversion of motor license and gasoline taxes monies were revived.

Faced with unpleasant reactions from their constituents on the proposed new taxes, legislators concluded that support of the highway diversion plan was the best way out of the dilemma.

So today a bill which suggests the use of $7,500,000 of highway funds has the approval of the governor's office. And some of the legislative objection to it arises out of the fact that the sum isn't large enough. There are those who figure that all highway work should be suspended for two years in order to avoid new taxes entirely.

Charles McKeown, Heil's financial secretary, said the cigarette tax is expected to yield $3,000,000 a year, but that it will fall on "Virginia tobacco."

At present the individual income taxpayer enjoys a $37.50 exemption under the new bill. Under the new bill that exemption would be reduced to his normal tax exemption. In other words he will pay the teachers' surtax rate on his normal tax, or about 16 per cent in addition to his normal tax.

Moreover, the bill removes the graduated rate on the lower brackets for corporation income taxes, and places a straight 6 per cent tax on all earnings, regardless of the amount. As a result the corporation which earns $5,000 a year—beyond which the rate is now a straight 6 per cent under the present law—will pay $160 a year more under the new bill than under the present law.

Out of those changes, the administration hopes to raise almost $6,000,000.

The increase in the privilege dividend tax rates from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent—expected to cause opposition from business sources, would bring in $3,000,000.

Liquor taxation would bring in $3,580,000 in addition to the present revenues, all of which would

Johns Joins With Progressives for Added Farm Funds

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—Congressman Joshua L. Johns, Algoma Republican, joined the two Wisconsin Progressives in voting for house concurrence in the senate amendment adding $113,000,000 for surplus commodities to the agriculture act.

As not more than 25 per cent of this sum can be used for any one commodity, it is hoped that the dairy industry will be included in the resulting increased distribution of food to the needy. Distribution will be done largely through the food stamp plan, in which butter, eggs, vegetables and fruits are already included, with other basic foods.

The senate amendment providing 225 millions for parity payments was agreed to by house members of the conference and included in a general house vote to accept the conference report. In this vote the Wisconsin delegation followed party divisions, Progressive Congressmen Merlino Hull of Black River Falls and Bernard J. Gehrmann of Melton voting to accept the report, all the Republicans voting against it.

$6,000 Estate Left By Hortonville Man

Petition for probate of the will of the late Frank Hoier, Hortonville, has been made in county court of Judge Fred V. Heinemann. The petition lists the estate at about $6,000. According to terms of the will two daughters, Elsie Manley, Cincinnati, and Edna Wright, West Bend, each will receive $1,500 while the remainder will be shared equally between the two daughters and two sons, Wilbur and Frank, Hortonville.

11 Cases of Contagion Reported During Week

Eleven cases of contagious diseases were reported to the city health department during the last week, according to Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer. There were eight cases of chicken pox, two of whooping cough and one of mumps. Active cases in the city at the end of the week were ten cases of chicken pox, three of scarlet fever and two of whooping cough.

remain with the state. The state treasury now acts only as the collecting agent for the liquor tax; the entire revenue goes to the localities.

As it turned out today, there was no definite knowledge of what the Heil administration holds in store for the taxpayers.

Apparently satisfied that its $73,000,000 budget is rock bottom for this term, the governor and the legislature have only to find a way to balance that with the $45,000,000 which continuing taxes now on the books will furnish.

It is a delicate, thankless, especially difficult job. Two formulas have already been introduced, and practically howled down. The third is given little chance of adoption. What will ultimately be decided upon, the capitol had no notion today.

Roosevelt Gets No Credit For His Effort to Retrench

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Suppose this were January, 1941, and a Republican administration were just settling down to business. I'll chance a guess that it would not be suddenly cutting off the flow of funds into the economic system.

Republicans who are taking a serious view of the return to power recognize that the transition must take place gradually. Few of them would care to see a sudden, drastic deflation, that would further dislocate the whole economy. The logical way would be to tighten the belt one notch at a time.

What would be more natural, then, than for the new Republican administration to say: "We'll quit giving away money to states and municipalities for public works. No sense in the federal government continuing these 45 per cent 'grants' which are merely gifts. Let's make it a business proposition and continue to lend at least until recovery seems well under way. We'll require that they use the money on practical projects which offer a reasonable chance of return, and of which the local governments are willing and able to amortize. We don't want to choke off everything completely but it is time to get this business down to a pay-its-own-way basis."

Mr. Hoover used to have some such idea as that. It would be a reversal of the present trend of subsidizing states and local governments. It would be a trend back toward more conservative financing of public works.

If such a thing were to happen, I can see the Republican editorial writers, and the big shot Republican business men who are customarily quoted in the press, all remarking that at last, thank God, Washington was getting back to orthodox methods and introducing sound principles. Washington was stopping the reckless giving away of money under Roosevelt. If states and municipalities wanted funds, let them borrow them and pay them back. I can see those confidence inspiring editorials now—all about the steps in the right direction.

It's Spending Program
When Roosevelt tries it

But when President Roosevelt tries it—that's different. If he does it, it is another extravagant spending program. It is going to further undermine confidence. Does anybody give him credit for trying to get away from the direct gifts or grants to states and for moving to put the operation on a pay-its-own-way basis? Nobody but a few crackpot New Dealers. If it's a Roosevelt scheme, then to hell with it.

I'll Ruin the Country.
Hear's Jesse Jones run the R. F. C. soundly? Hasn't it collected most of the money back? Yes, but Jesse is a sound, practical business man. The R. F. C. was a Republican-Hoover invention. But you can be sure that anything Roosevelt proposes is no good. He is going to charge interest and make them pay the money back. That's just a stall. Don't believe him. He's just taking us on down the toboggan. We're going on the rocks sure.

Democracy is a Miracle
If It Works at all

All of which illustrates the luxury to which a democracy treats itself. It recalls an ironical passage in Harold Laski's book on "Parliamentary Government in England." He says, speaking of England: "We have a government in office which is, presumably, trying to do its best. It is introducing measures which it believes to be for the good of the country."

"Yet we pay a large number of members of the house of commons to obstruct public business as much

AAA Headquarters
Of County Moved
To New Quarters

Agricultural Conservation
Offices Now Housed in
Olympia Building

The county executive committee, upon the recommendation of the buildings and grounds committee, Saturday decided to rent space on the third floor of the Olympia building, 107 E. College avenue, for the county agricultural conservation association. The AAA project was being removed from the third floor of the courthouse to the new location this morning.

The association asked more room because of additional help being secured for the first county AAA check with aerial photographs of farms. Hall space had been utilized for the work at the courthouse. The new quarters are to be rented monthly by month for $35 per month. Uninvested funds of the special courthouse trust fund will be invested in Bonds Owners' Loan corporation bonds maturing Feb. 1, 1944, the committee decided. The amount to be invested is $18,500.

Robert of H. H. Helble, Appleton high school principal, for 20 to 40 acres of land to be used for a high school conservation project was referred to the park board.

Action was deferred upon a proposal for combining the offices of the county certification bureau with that of some county relief officer until a more detailed report on the matter is made by Sanger Fowler, field representative of the Wisconsin Public Welfare department.

"All I know about the rumors is what I have read in the papers," he said.

Meanwhile, another rumor cropped up that former Governor Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin may be appointed to this post, or to the rural electrification administration, to succeed John Carmody, named to head the new federal works agency.

Order Trio Blamed
For Boathouse Fire
To Clean Up Debris

Acting Juvenile Judge Thomas H. Ryan Saturday gave an all summer job to the three Appleton youths responsible for the recent $10,000 boathouse fire. He ordered the trio to clear up the debris caused by the blaze which destroyed three boathouses and four cruisers.

Judge Ryan also placed them on probation to their respective fathers for one year and the youths must report each month to Police Chief George T. Prim.

The youths caused the fire when one of them dropped a lighted match on some spilled gasoline while they were stealing gas from one of the boats which burned, according to police who said the youths confessed after questioning. Street Department Humbles
Officials' Team, 15 and 11

The city officials went down to a 15 to 11 defeat at the hands of the street department in a softball game Sunday morning at Pierce park.

But that doesn't tell the whole story. The officials some of them anyway, have an idea they were "taken" just a little and have accused the street department of running in a couple of "rings."

The officials would like another game with the department just to prove they have the best team. And while he was making the challenge, Alderman McGillan, captain of the team, said his squad would like a game with the city's firemen. He said he didn't think the firemen had much but it would make a good practice game.

Rain Due Tonight, Tomorrow; Thermometer
At 81 in City Today

Showers and thunderstorms were back in the weatherman's vocabulary today after a weekend that brought the warmest temperatures of the year.

A general forecast of showers tonight and tomorrow was issued for the state this morning by the Milwaukee bureau. Little change in temperature is expected.

The mercury climbed up to 89 in Appleton yesterday, the Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported today. The peak was reached at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The lowest reading during the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning was 68.

For adults, the swimming season had its official introduction over the weekend. Youngsters have been splashing around in the water for weeks, but most grown-ups have been waiting for hotter weather. They got it Saturday and Sunday.

The advent of warm weather boosted the volume of traffic on highways in Appleton and vicinity as thousands sought the outdoors. Boating, golfing, tennis, fishing, and just plain loafing under the hot sun hit season highs.

Overcast this morning, the sky above Appleton cleared considerably during the afternoon and the sun broke through. The thermometer at the Post-Crescent registered 81 degrees at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

inary examination of the university books showed "financial irregularities which may reach a total of several hundred thousand dollars."

Efforts "to reach him (Smith) for questioning have been unsuccessful," the governor said.

A few minutes later, Leche and Long, brother of the late "Kingfish" Huey P. Long, made a joint statement that Leche's resignation as governor in favor of Long, scheduled to take place at noon today, had been "temporarily postponed."

Arrest Ordered
State police, with orders to arrest Dr. Smith on sight, were stationed at railroad stations, highways and airports. Other state police took over the university offices of Dr. Smith. Edgar N. Jackson, business manager, and C. Gordon Johnson, auditor of L. S. U.

Governor Leche's statement said a special grand jury investigation of the alleged irregularities would begin "immediately" and that he had called a meeting of the board of administrators of the university to consider the matter Monday afternoon.

Long, who drove here last night from the Long family home in Winnfield, seemed surprised, although after Governor Leche announced last Wednesday night that he intended to quit because of ill health, Long commented: "I'm not governor yet. That man may change his mind tomorrow."

Appleton Boy Scout
Suffers Burns When
Grease Pan Is Upset

Frederick Stoffel, Appleton, a member of Troop 1, St. Joseph's church, was painfully burned about the arms, chest, and face when a pan of boiling grease was upset during the valley council camporee at Clintonville Saturday evening.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stoffel, 415 W. College avenue, he and several other scouts were cooking supper over an outdoor stove when the accident occurred.

The pan of grease became ignited. One of the scouts kicked it off the fire, splashing the grease on the Stoffel youth, who was not wearing a shirt.

The youth was taken to the Red Cross tent, later to the Clintonville Community hospital, and Sunday was returned to his home here.

His parents reported this morning that his burns were painful and extensive, but that he is "all right." The worst burns are on the boy's arms and chest, but his face was also affected.

A considerable number of camporee scouts were treated at the first aid tent at Clintonville during the weekend event, but only for minor cuts and bruises.

Never-Ending
Responsibility

AT ALL HOURS of every day and night we serve the needs of bereaved families. In advance of need we give protective advice on funeral matters — facts that dispell illusions regarding high prices.

WHEN WE are called to serve, the cost of an appropriate service of beauty, dignity and true value is never more, often less, than is often paid for services publicly known as a "bargain" funeral.

To protect the privacy and finances of those we serve is our never-ending responsibility.

Democratic chiefs gave little immediate attention to this proposal, devoting all their energies to the tangled legislative situation which they fear may prevent enactment of pressing appropriation measures before the June 30 deadline.

A senate appropriations subcommittee hoped to complete revision of the house-approved $1,735,000,000 relief bill by nightfall, after changing several features opposed by the administration.

Senate Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) wants to sidetrack temporarily the controversial monetary bill in order to begin relief debate tomorrow, but western senators blocking the former measure said they would object unless their demands for higher silver prices were met.

Their prolonged debate—Barkley calls it a filibuster—entered its second week today, with the senate meeting an hour earlier than usual and night sessions in prospect.

The monetary measure, approved by the house weeks ago, would extend for two years the administration's powers to devalue the dollar further and to maintain the $2,000,000,000 exchange stabilization fund. Those powers expire Friday unless re-enacted, but Barkley said they were not so urgent as relief.

Another bill, which must pass before Friday if embarrassments are to be avoided is the $1,180,000,000 agricultural department supply measure, on which a senate house committee is trying to reach a compromise. Funds for the communications commission and deficiency funds for other agencies are also awaiting final action.

HEALTH QUERIES
ANSWERED

Question: Why do so many people take Chiropractic? W. J. R.
Answer: 1. Because they want to be well.
2. Because they realize that no other form of wealth is equal to health.
Question: How does Chiropractic make sick people well?
C. E. F.
Answer: By restoring ORDER to the human body. The Creator intended the human being to be well—NOT sick. He did His work perfectly and all the organs of the body function perfectly and work together harmoniously, with HEALTH as the result. When there is no interference with His work. But, like the electric light that goes on and off intermittently because of a "short" in the wiring somewhere along the line, the stomach, liver, lungs, heart and other organs cannot do their work properly if there is a "short" anywhere along the wire (nerve) leading to any of these organs.

When any organ fails to do its work properly there will be some immediate trouble, but worse than that, when this condition prevails without correction for a long period of time, a greater burden is thrown upon the other organs. They can stand this extra burden for a reasonable length of time, but they gradually weaken and fail to do their work properly because of this overwork.

Thus, it is easy to understand why Chiropractic gets people well. Disease is caused by failure of the organs to do their work properly. Failure of the organs to do their work properly is caused by a "short" in the wiring (nervous) system. WE remove "the short"—the FIRST CAUSE of disease. YOU get WELL. He did His work perfectly and all the organs of the body function perfectly and work together harmoniously, with HEALTH as the result. When there is no interference with His work. But, like the electric light that goes on and off intermittently because of a "short" in the wiring somewhere along the line, the stomach, liver, lungs, heart and other organs cannot do their work properly if there is a "short" anywhere along the wire (nerve) leading to any of these organs.

When any organ fails to do its work properly there will be some immediate trouble, but worse than that, when this condition prevails without correction for a long period of time, a greater burden is thrown upon the other organs. They can stand this extra burden for a reasonable length of time, but they gradually weaken and fail to do their work properly because of this overwork.

Thus, it is easy to understand why Chiropractic gets people well. Disease is caused by failure of the organs to do their work properly. Failure of the organs to do their work properly is caused by a "short" in the wiring (nervous) system. WE remove "the short"—the FIRST CAUSE of disease. YOU get WELL. MILK AND FRAUD

If Arsene Lupin, Sherlock Holmes and the Pinkertons employed by the commonwealth to watch Mr. Rohan and other farmers, who are trying to get some cash for their milk, can be spared a while they may undertake the investigation and presentations of the case against Mr. Dinneen, once Public Service Commission secretary, who is charged with something almost as bad as selling milk that one might live.

Mr. Dinneen, it may be remembered, was a servant of the people, paid an excellent and generous salary over a period of about 25 years in order to help protect Wisconsin residents from the ravaging wolves who are ready to pounce if the wardens leave their sentry houses or may be induced to close their eyes. In fact Mr. Dinneen is accused of one of the most perfidious crimes on the books. It is claimed he abandoned those who had supported him for a quarter of a century, opened the great protecting gates when they were asleep, gave the high sign to the wolves and let them in to feed without restraint. Documentary evidence of a prima facie nature has been produced that would indicate this man made possible the hundreds of thousands of dollars collected by the heartless Buckman buccanniers from inexperienced and aged persons.

Few in Wisconsin will try to pass upon these charges or attempt to prejudice the case against Mr. Dinneen in advance of his trial. Everyone will insist upon that hallmark of civilization, a fair and just hearing with a decision by a jury guided in the usual manner by an experienced judge.

But, of course, the people can hardly expect even such important trials as that against Mr. Dinneen, however, long it has been hanging fire, to take precedence over the imperious demands for immediate machine gun action against such appalling crimes as the disposition of a can of milk by the very farmer who milked the cows upon the very farm where it was produced.

Everything is relative in this world. There are some crimes that make men shudder and some that make them smile. But certainly we may postpone even such important things as the Dinneen trial while the men with gumshoes stalk the farmers who would dare question the wisdom and sagacity, the intellectual greatness and statesmanship, of those who rule, and suggest that the mighty creation of their ponderous brains could well be defined by the one word—folly.

WE'RE CLASS, WE ARE

The cables advise us that a recognized British authority on genealogy has concluded that Queen Elizabeth is related to George Washington and Robert E. Lee; and that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Chamberlain are also related, being eighth cousins three times removed, with King Edward I of England as a common ancestor.

The reader may now realize why the Germans tear their hair and go into a frenzy when the British start putting on their propaganda shows. Instead of losing their tempers and grinding their molars in fury the Germans would do well to duplicate the procedure.

This discovery, even though its announcement has been delayed so long makes America and England practically one. It inoculates us with that determination to sink or swim together.

Although our President will feel a bit of pique and frustration to be merely related to the Prime Minister instead of the king or queen it must be remembered that the relationship is traced through royalty itself so that our blood is blue, high-spirited and ancient. Besides propaganda is never successful if it is put on too thick.

Instinctively the English know when to stop. They are so well mannered they can gauge accurately the absorbing power of another people for the saccharine and know that a taste that is cloyed is a taste in revolt.

Let the good work of the genealogists continue. Honest Harold Ikes may yet be made a bloodbrother of the Duke of Marlborough. Hull and Hopkins certainly have noble connections among the cobwebbed cloisters. But how will they ever work Attorney General Murphy in? Our bet is still on the English. They've handled harder problems than that and come out with colors flying. It will be a little embarrassing to Mr. Murphy to be called Sir Frank but a New Dealer isn't worth his salt if he can't keep a straight face and Sir Frank didn't grin a wrinkle when he orated against the use of federal judicial appointments to pay political debts a few days before Mr. Duffy was appointed to Judge Geiger's position.

SHEARING THE SHORN LAMB

Having apparently abandoned the proposed sales tax on automobiles, liquor and amusement tickets the legislative advisers of the Heil administration have cornered the mild and kindly, even if a bit poisonous, cigar and are gloating over it as the big, bad wolf slavered over Mary's little lamb.

The men who grow tobacco and the men who take it and create the cigaret merit something in the way of a monument sky high. For these two together receive 5 cents for a package of twenty cigarettes while the federal government already receives 6 cents sales tax on every such package. Of course if the tobacco grower has a good year and makes some money or if the cigaret manufacturer isn't knocked cold by sales taxes and also makes a profit, each must respond, too, to various governments who reach hungrily in to grab what they can.

If Wisconsin puts an additional tax of 2 cents a package on cigarettes we will actually have a sales tax of 160 per cent on an article that is sufficiently necessary that the country would get the jim-jams and the jammed jingles if deprived of it.

But such is the present situation of blubber, baloney and bughouse that this result is created: To the tobacco grower 2 1/2 cents, to the manufacturer and all his labor 2 1/2 cents, but to the tax creators 8 cents.

Wisconsin, however, has a precedent. If it passes this tax it still won't house the worst taxed people in the country for New York state has a 2-cent tax on cigarettes and New York City has a 1-cent tax. Pushed to extremity the New Yorkers may still put on a ward tax.

The soprano bleat of the tearful little cigaret will probably never be heard above the roar of organized minorities demanding more appropriations. The brunt of a successful defensive battle in a case like this must be borne by a union of cigaret smokers buttressed by a steam callopie and mass picketing.

THE FRENCH ARE LIKE THAT

Mme. Yvonne Lebert, a French woman, both chic and energetic, as French women are presumed to be, is in America telling reporters the difficulties she confronted in employing the Gallup poll system to ascertain how the French people felt upon various political and world problems.

And Mme. Lebert is a good sport and an equally good mixer for the reporters found her sipping a rye highball which is no more related to France than an extinct buffalo or an American Indian. A tough job it has been, this getting opinions from the French. Over here in America, reminds Mme. Lebert, all you have to do is go up to a carpet sweeper or a papermaker and ask him what he thinks of so-and-so, but over in France he would look down with a glassy stare and an imperious shrug of his stuffed shoulders and turn away without even a word. Mme. Lebert gives us the prescription in France as follows:

"My inquiring reporters must go from friend to friend and say 'Mme. Escottier, your friend, Mme. Petit sends her compliments and suggests that you might like to discuss several problems with me.'"

Nothing can be done in relation to such a contemplated cross-examination unless it is done upon a social basis and this idea is carried through every class of society and whether upon the farm or in the shop.

Nor is the only difficulty to be found in the natural reluctance of the people to admit the right in anyone to ask them questions. The very nation seems to be up in arms at such an audacious undertaking. Mme. Lebert found her inquirers suspected of espionage and sometimes thrown into the house. One of them down on the Riviera talked fast enough to escape by declaring she was only pursuing one "of those crazy American ideas." And since the average Frenchman is sure there is a large share of our population habitually loco an explanation of that sort is not unpopular, in fact is a pretty good key to conduct generally unorthodox.

Mme. Lebert promises that in two more generations the Latin temperament in France will disappear and the country will be perfectly Americanized. If her prophecy comes true France will lose one of her greatest assets in the hordes of Americans who travel thither to see a people not only different but quite unique.

A Verse for Today

THE OLD NURSE

Age has not robbed her hands of tenderness. Or made her heart faintly for the poor Sick souls who lean upon her strength to bless Their lives and keep them resolute and sure. Age may have slowed her weary feet, and turned Her hair as white as the smooth linen she Can fold so deftly. . . . But it has not burned Away her usefulness, her energy.

I hear her quiet footstep in the hall. Anticipating comfort as I wait. Her shadow looms upon the windowed wall. She leans above me like a kindly Fate. And the accumulation of her years Gives her the wisdom to remove my fears.

North and South America combined are roughly four times the area of Europe.

The Arctic is the shallowest of all oceans, its maximum recorded depth being 12,000 feet.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—John J. Anthony tells other people whether to break up housekeeping, what to do about adopting babies, and whether wives should handle their husbands' pay checks, but to me he tells less personal things. He told me, for instance, about the Time Ball.

There was, it seems, a time when the sailors used the Time Ball to set their watches. Now it is simpler. One merely calls Meridian 7-1212, and a voice automatically intones: "The correct time is 12:22 p.m." if that happens to be the correct time.

The Time Ball is at the Seaman's Church Institute down on South Street. The ball is six feet in diameter and weighs 300 pounds. It is of bronze and is covered with canvas painted black. It has holes through the center so it can slide up and down a pole, and the whole business is enclosed in a glass beacon tower.

When released, the ball falls into a steel cup at the base of the pole, and there are springs to break the fall. The ball is hoisted to the top of the pole by a hand crank. A magnet at the top holds it in place. Time signals begin coming in from Washington one minute before noon, eastern standard time each day, the seconds being clicked off on a ticker. It clicks off 29 seconds then skips the 30th as a warning. Just before the long signal denoting noon, there is an eight-second pause. During that period a switch is thrown, and when the long signal sounds it releases the magnet, and the ball falls.

Sailors don't pay much attention any more, but many people in Wall Street still set their tickers by it. Occasionally it doesn't work. Twice last winter the ball froze to the pole and wouldn't slide.

TWA, the airline, continues to get TVA in its hair. The other day an airplane pilot decided to buy an automobile. The finance company, however, turned down the deal with a curt note: "We do not finance people working on relief." It took some explaining to convince the company that TWA stands for Transcontinental and Western Air, not Tennessee Valley Authority.

Officers of the air line say the confusion is almost a daily thing. It is quite common, they say, to receive notices to appear before committees in Washington and report on dam matters, even the government getting the two organizations mixed.

Speaking of mixing things up, a question recently asked of airline hostesses in a quiz was: "What is a cowling?" Several pretty girls answered: "A cowling is a little cow."

A naval officer was talking over the phone the other day with a newspaperman, and during the course of the conversation remarked that he had something to do with the Navy's magazines. "Ah, a brother in literature," said the reporter. "Not magazines with pictures in them," replied the lieutenant, hastily. "I mean powder magazines."

A correspondent confides from Texas that he has found a considerable hostile sentiment to the New York Fair. He said he had talked with business men in seven southwestern states in recent weeks, and that 90 per cent of them told him they objected strenuously to allowing their wives and daughters to come to the fair. "All the talk about nudism has disgusted them," the correspondent said.

Well, I dunno. The nudism is here, all right. But it isn't the big thing at the Fair, and no one has to look at it if they prefer other things, like machinery. Nudism actually is inconsequential compared with the many other things. It is confined to N.T.G.'s Cavalcade of Beauty, the Sunworshippers, the Crystal Lassies, the Savoy Ballroom Theatre, the Cuban Village and the Crystal Palace. Of course, the girl who is frozen into a cake of ice doesn't wear an overcoat, and the huge chorus of swimmers at the Aquacade may show a bit of skin, but neither show can be said to be nudist.

Archduke Francis Ferdinand, nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph and heir to the Austrian throne, and the Duchess of Hohenberg, his morganatic wife, were assassinated at Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia. EXCHANGE CONTROL DEPRIVES GERMAN WOMEN OF OILED SILK UMBRELLAS

German women are henceforth to be deprived of the oiled silk umbrellas, which, by reason of their lightness and small size, have become popular here as in other countries. The Reich Leader of the Umbrella and Walking Stick Specialty department, addressing his followers at a recent meeting, said that the oiled silk from which the umbrellas were made had to be imported from abroad. The silk was Japanese and the processing took place in England. In future no foreign exchange would be released for the purchase of this oiled silk, and it remained for German chemists to make good the deficiency thus created with oiled artificial silk—London Times.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—One of the first tests for New Deal and anti-New Deal delegates is coming in Kentucky from now in a show with almost the same actors as were in the eye-gouging election last year.

The candidates are different but the two men in the saddle are the same, Governor Chandler and Senator Barkley.

Chandler's term as governor expires this year and he is backing Keene Johnson, his lieutenant governor, to succeed him in Kentucky a governor cannot succeed himself. Barkley, in turn, is backing John Young Brown who once ran for senator. Running independent of either group is Charles D. Arnett.

The primary is the first Tuesday in August. And in Kentucky, except in special circumstances, the primary is the election.

So far there aren't enough sharply defined local issues to distinguish the rival Barkley and Chandler candidates from each other. Both are advocating a revision of the state's old age contributions so Kentucky will get the full $15 federal contribution instead of the $3 or $4 a month for the aged which is paid to the state now on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis.

A Bigger Issue
The big interest in the Kentucky primary is not the social security business but what faction will control selection of the delegates to the 1940 national convention. Naturally the winning faction will take care of that.

Before another month is out the contest may center on the national issue and not on the local candidates. If Brown, Barkley's candidate, wins, the delegation to the 1940 Democratic convention will most certainly will be a pro-New Deal crowd. It will be available to President Roosevelt or a candidate of the President's choosing. That candidate may, of course, be Senator Barkley.

In event Johnson, Chandler's candidate, wins the coming primary, the Chandler delegates to the convention also may be nominally instructed to Barkley as a favorite son. But they won't be Roosevelt delegates. When they stop complimenting Barkley with a vote they will be available to the Chandler faction, and that is decidedly not New Deal. Chandler is not forgetting that President Roosevelt campaigned in person against him last year in Kentucky in order to save Barkley, the administration lead in the Senate.

It is already accepted by Kentuckians here that the Chandler delegates will be anti-Roosevelt delegates unless it develops before the convention that Roosevelt leaders will control it.

This far before the primary a race even closer than a year ago is developing. Last year Barkley's organization in Louisville delivered him a 35,000 majority in the city. He won the senatorial nomination over Chandler, 300,000 to 225,000. But Barkley's city leader in Louisville is dead and his candidate as a result can't be so sure of the city's vote.

Generally throughout the state Chandler has the better organization, and the Barkley faction is handicapped this year by the probability that President Roosevelt will not come in to help.

Without Roosevelt, the 75,000 majority that went for Barkley last year could shrink out of sight.

If the above sounds complex, keep in mind that Kentucky politics is a complex business. Just to help clear up the picture, it might be added that Brown, who is Barkley's candidate, used to be a Chandler man while Johnson, now Chandler candidate once was in an organization opposed to Chandler.

Kentucky, however, likes its politics thick as soup.

HOLDS UP TRAIN

Glenrock, Wyo. — (U) — An east bound passenger train was rolling along right on top of its speedy schedule when the engineer peered ahead and saw a horse in the middle of the tracks.

He reached for the brake lever and transcontinental passengers killed time for an hour while the train crew untangled the horse's legs from the ties in a trestle he had attempted to cross.

Finally they laid a carpet of box car doors over the fiasco and the horse could walk back to solid ground.

SIMPLE SIMON WENT A FISHING FOR TO CATCH A WHALE

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It isn't due to be announced for some weeks, but Dr. L. F. Gullickson, chairman of the Wisconsin

Republican party for the last year, will submit his resignation to the Republican state convention which will be called for September in a Fox River Valley city.

There are different versions of the reasons for Gullickson's plan to quit his job at the height of his prestige, and after 30 years in the Republican vineyard. His own explanation is that he wants to return to his dental practice in West Salem; current party gossip has it that he will move up into higher spheres of Republican politics, into national campaign work in preparation for the 1940 canvass.

Whatever the reason, it is plain that whatever sentiment within the party against Gullickson—such as the demand from certain sources last spring that he resign as he evaporated. He could keep the job if he wanted it, but he has apparently decided otherwise.

CONVENTION PLAN
According to Republican party sources, the slight, mild La Crosse county dentist has done an efficient job of rebuilding the party, though aided of course by the events of last year, including the remarkable landslide of last November.

When he assumed the chairmanship of the state committee a little over a year ago, Republican leaders counted themselves lucky if they rustled out half of the membership of the state committee for their very occasional meetings.

He started his job under the aegis of Edward J. Samp, who had dominated the committee for the last few years, and who resigned only to run for senator last fall—a venture, incidentally, which ended unfortunately for Samp. However, there is no current evidence that anyone but Gullickson makes his decisions. Samp's influence has waned decidedly.

Gullickson started his chairmanship with the aim, he told friends, of "restoring the party to the rank and file Republicans." He feels that after the September convention that will have been accomplished, and he will step down.

The convention will be held to reorganize the Republican machinery. Delegates will be chosen by the membership of Republican county organization caucuses which ought to be begun soon. The meetings will probably be announced shortly after Gullickson completes the work of organizing the few counties which remain on his unorganized list.

BIOGRAPHY

A Republican reader recently wrote this correspondent that although Gullickson had been chairman during a winning year, he didn't know much about him.

That is a peculiar fact about Gullickson. Head of the machinery of the dominant state party, he came into the limelight after a career as a rural politician who had never managed to get into the circle of state leaders which ran the party during the early '30's, the period during which the party enjoyed least success.

A dentist, he served in the Mexican border campaign as a first sergeant, went overseas with the A. E. F., and returned a captain. He went to school at the University of Minnesota and Marquette, was an ardent baseball player in his day.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

LIKE A CAT IN THE DARK

"To take out the car after dark" remarks a Connecticut Yankee, "used to be torture to me because, unable to see more than a few feet ahead, I had to creep along at snail's pace and at the approach of another car was so blinded by the headlights that often I had to stop altogether, making myself a nuisance on the road."

"One evening I was compelled to take the old bus out. To my surprise I discovered I could see and drive as well as any one else. Curiosity made me try it again the next night, with the same result, and I have had no difficulty with night driving since. I wondered what brought about the change, until I came across an article of yours, telling of some doctor feeding Newfoundland fishermen a spoonful or two of cod liver oil and so enabling the men to resume their fishing at night. Then I realized that vitamin A had done it."

I had been taking two vitamin A capsules a day for several days, 10,000 units a day for several days, 50,000 units a day, for another purpose. Several friends to whom I told of my experience have tried it and they have had the same gratifying results. It should be a great boon to all who have such dread of night driving.

Vitamin A is the one I have generally designated the apocryphal "B" vitamin. I can't prove by me even now that there is any serious shortage of vitamin A in any ordinary diet in this country. It seems to me that the only vitamins most people need concern themselves at all for health's sake, are vitamin B-complex (which includes a dozen entities such as B-1 (thiamin), B-2 (riboflavin or G), nicotinic acid, etc.) and sunshine vitamin D. Young infants and some invalids on a restricted diet need supplementary rations of vitamin C. As for vitamin A, vitamin E, and other alleged vitamins so clearly defined, you may leave them entirely in the hands of your physician.

On request, if you enclose a stamped envelope bearing your address, I will send you a monograph on V (eye) tamin A. If you essay the guinea pig for your own experimental investigations I hope you will give us a report of your results.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Why, Oh, Why?
Why do people in the food trade choose not to carry wheat germ on the ground that it is perishable, yet they carry ice cream moist yeast, margarine, dated coffee and many other items that do not keep as well or as long as wheat germ does? (J. B. W.)

Answer—Aw, now I'll ask you one: Why do men wear hats when it isn't raining or the sun is hot blistering?

Safe for Seventeen
Is your iodine ration safe for a girl of seventeen? I have taken it for two months and feel wonderful. (T. R.)

Answer—It is safe for any one, except only persons under medical care, who should ask their own physicians. Others — everybody needs a little iodine, I believe — send a three-cent-stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for instructions for taking Iodin Ration.

Fauna of the Alimentary Tract
All my life I have heard amazing stories of people harboring live snakes, lizards or other creatures in stomach intestine or other part of body. (O. S.)

Answer—Only living creatures people ever harbor are natural parasites—such as pinworms, round worms, tapeworms. All yarns of the sort you mention are sheer yarns. If eggs or larval forms of any such creatures were swallowed, they would be destroyed by digestive juices, could never hatch or survive. SPOILS INAUGURAL Mosquero, N. M.—(U)—For months the volunteer fire ladders of Mosquero waited for a chance to try out their shiny new truck at a blaze.

Came an alarm and all hands answered. One after another they took turns on the crank handle. They wound and they wound. But someone had filched the gasoline.

Meanwhile the old Drake farm house burned to ashes.

More than 200 delegates of Luther Leagues and their pastors are attending the sessions which opened with services at 7:30 Sunday evening. Churches are represented from about 50 Wisconsin cities, among them, Milwaukee, West Allis, West Bend, Portage, Elkhorn, Waukesha, Marinette, Kenosha, Racine, Beaver Dam, Horicon, Bailley's Harbor, La Crosse, Antigo, Cudahy and Appleton.

A matins service this morning, conducted by the Rev. Finn Hansen, Neenah, was highlighted by a talk by the Rev. Rees who, using the convention theme, "Look Unto Him, Ye Nations" discussed it from the spiritual angle.

The business session opened at 10:30 with appointment of committees, reception of new leagues and adoption of reports.

Dr. Paul C. White, secretary of the New York Synod, representing the Luther League of America, and Dr. R. H. Gerberding, president of the synod of the Northwest, spoke prior to the luncheon.

The Rev. Edmond R. Wicklund conducted the vesper service beginning at 1:30 with the Rev. Mr. Reed, Milwaukee, discussing the convention theme from a social angle.

The young people were taken on a tour of the Lakeview mill of the Kimberly-Clark corporation during the afternoon.

The Rev. H. T. Rasmussen, Antigo, will be guest speaker at the 6:30 banquet this evening. Margaret Smith will act as toastmistress and Dr. T. J. Seiler will conduct the community singing.

The Rev. Rudolph Schultz, president of Carthage college, Carthage, Ill., will speak on "Look Unto Him, Ye Nations... educationally" as the feature address at the Tuesday morning session. A sunrise service will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Buck at 6:00 o'clock.

Tuesday morning during the business meeting, committees report awards and election of officers will be the main features. The Rev. John I. Meck will install the officers at the convention closes.

Declaring that a more militant faith is needed, militant in the sense of zeal, courage, and knowledge of religion within and a part of life, the Rev. Samuel H. Roth, local pastor, opened the convention Sunday evening as he told the young people that the kingdom of God on earth can only come when Christians think of religion as a practical thing to be lived each day.

"The hope of all nations is with you Christian young people who, with humility, with service, with religion a reality within you, make practical application of Christianity," the Rev. Mr. Roth said.

"Too Complacent" "We have too many so-called Christians, too many members setting a Judas example. The pessimism and fear that seems to invade people today smacks too much of being licked before we go forth. It is a poor way for Christian people. God is only a stranger because the world has chosen to be a stranger to Him. We are too complacent in our religion, not a young club and a soup kitchen nor a young club and a hotel with upholstered furniture. It is not a place for classical preaching. It is a house consecrated to a great cause, righteousness, peace and joy of the kingdom of God, and a practical religion."

The service opened with two organ selections by Miss Gladys Michaelson and the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" as the professional for the junior and young people's choirs. The choir sang "O Lord Most Holy" after which the vespers were conducted by the Rev. Paul A. Feustel, Horicon. Miss Ruth Reichel presented a solo, "My Peace I Leave Unto You" with choral accompaniment.

Miss Joyce Rafoth president of the Intermediate Luther League of the local church, welcomed the delegates and Howard Anderson, president of the state Luther League, responded.

Christian Life Is Solution to Ills, Minister Asserts

Rev. Bertram Reed Is Speaker at Lutheran Convention Today

Neenah—Declaring that the Christian life is the solution to world ills, the Rev. Bertram Reed, Milwaukee, told 100 delegates assembled in St. Paul's English Lutheran church for the forty-first annual state convention this morning, that the world is made up of nations of individuals, and the individuals must be strong against difficulties and shadows that appear, and they must contribute something effective to the world's future.

Only through a Christian life can the right relationship among people and among nations be achieved, he stated. Unless the Christian principles are carried through and within life, false relationships with other individuals and with nations exist.

Old Timers Lose but Give Falcon Regulars a Workout

Menasha—The Menasha Falcons will be permitted in their club house but they won't be making much noise this week. They edged an 11 to 9 decision over the old timers Saturday afternoon at the Menasha ball park in a game that took one and a half hours to play and an equal amount of time to argue.

The Falcons won but the old timers blasted out 15 hits, three more than the winners collected. The big blow of the game was a home run by Shawano Zenski in the third inning. The former Menasha great pitcher teed off on a pitch by Artie Zuzanowski and drove it high over the fence in center field. In fact, the ball cleared a 15 foot wall and landed inside the addition being built by the wire works.

The Falcons got 12 hits but they made half of them good for extra bases for the old timers had trouble flexing their knees enough to get down on the ball. Outside of Zenski's homer, a double by G. Weisgerber he hits by the old timers went for singles. Their legs just weren't fast enough to carry them around.

Picked Off At First John Shleski and Hammy Powell played the entire game for the old timers. Shleski got three hits in six attempts but twice was picked off of first. Shleski blasted two out of three while George Weisgerber, John Zenski, Tom Zielinski, and George Mix came up with two hits each. George Weisgerber played the entire game with the exception of one inning when he was spiked by Nodolny. Steve Kolasinski cavorted around first base and in the batter's box only to strike out while Weisgerber was rating.

What's New at the Library

Thomas Wolfe's new novel, "The Web and the Rock," completed before the novelist's death, is ready for circulation at Appleton Public library. The only love story the novelist ever wrote, the story revolves around George Webber, brilliant young writer who like every American boy dreams of one day going to New York and finding fame, fortune and love. He finally goes to the city, and although fame and fortune elude him he finds love. Wolfe makes his audience apprehend what is already familiar to them from their experience, vividly and with understanding.

Another work of fiction which is at the library is "The Brandons" by Angela Thirkell. Mrs. Brandon, the heroine, has a grown son and daughter, but in spite of that she attracts men of all ages. However they never get to declare their feelings because she never understands what they are saying. In the book appear Old Aunt Sissie, dangling before her relations her fortune that no one wants, and Young Mr. Grant, oppressed by his mother.

"Our Town's Business" by Omar and Ryllia Goslin takes apart the machinery of business in villages, towns, small and large cities through the United States, and presents it in such an understandable manner as to interest consumers, shopkeepers, merchants, industrialists, workers and farmers. The discussion centers around the varying social and economic problems in the American scene and in each instance the situation in a particular American community is used to dramatize the problem.

To gather material for his book, "Blue Water Vagabond," Dennis Fuleston, a young Englishman, cruised the South and China seas for six years, seeking adventure and finding it. Penniless, he found himself in charge of a derelict coconut estate until a hurricane devastated it, then he shipped on a wandering schooner for America. A salvage expedition off the coast of Santo Domingo was followed by two years cruising the islands of the Pacific, then followed New Guinea and violent storms and malaria. War adventures in China and Siberia close the odyssey.

How to hold attention in a conversation, to be interesting, to express one's thoughts and personal attitudes, to present ideas in different ways, to arouse curiosity, maintain suspense and give surprise, all these are told in Wendell White's book, "The Psychology of Making Life Interesting." It gives all kinds of hints on how to attain those interesting personal qualities which help in social, business and public life.

"Connecticut, Past and Present" by Odell Shepard was written on the premise that no one can understand the state as she now is unless he knows a good deal about what she has been. The author, although not a native of Connecticut, has lived there for 20 years during which time he has acquired a range and depth of knowledge of it that enables him to write authoritatively. He has made an effort to define those special qualities of the Connecticut mind and character which he believes are implicit in them all.

The beauty and charm of California's storied past are caught by Hildegarde Hawthorne and presented in her book, "Romantic Cities of California." ## Elect 'Townsend Congress' in '40, Leader Demands

Pension Move Chief Says Insurgent Attacks Will Be Ignored

Indianapolis—47—Urged by their 72-year-old leader, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, to "go home and work for a Townsend congress in 1940," weary delegates to the fourth annual national convention of Townsend clubs headed today for their homes in the four corners of the nation.

Four days of heat-ridden sessions, filled with speech-making from United States senators and representatives and just plain soap box orators ended yesterday when Dr. Townsend, speaking at the Indiana state fairgrounds, served notice any insurgent movement within the organization would be ignored.

While Dr. Townsend spoke to a crowd estimated by his followers at from 10,000 to 12,000, a group of revolutionists made plans to form an "independent" old age pension organization.

An insurgent committee headed by Harry V. Dill of Cincinnati gave out a statement striking particularly at what they called "the seizure by Dr. Townsend and his son of perpetual control of the cause."

They asserted such action "insures positive defeat of the relief in congress."

Amid cheers and shouting, the convention approved a resolution and San Luis Obispo, to Monterey and Carmel, San Francisco and the Contra Costa, up the Redwood Highway, to the gold towns of Weaverville and Chico, Placerville and Coloma.

Intended for practical teachers is the book, "Speech Training and Play Production for Schools" by Lilian Cornelius.

A new play, "My Hearts in the Highland," marks the first venture of William Saroyan, short story writer, into the realm of play writing. Described as an American fable it is the story of a poet and his son, Johnny, and their effort to make the world realize that it must have poetry, and of Jasper MacGregor, the "greatest Shakespearean actor who ever lived." The play was produced by the Group Theatre in New York City in April of this year.

Added to the shelf of travel books is "Old Calabria" by Norman Douglas. The author traversed the paths, riverbeds, and mule tracks of Calabria, stopping in inns, making friends with the natives and investigating their local legends.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Offhand, I can't think of a more interesting experiment in human nature than would result if Bob Hope bumped head-on into adversity. Not that I have the least doubt of his courage or ability to "take it" — my interest would be focused on the innumerable down-on-their-luckers whom he has befriended in the brief time he's been in Hollywood. I'd like to see just how much Hollywood gratitude is worth.

Fidler — Bob Hope seems to have a passion for playing the Good Samaritan, a laudable and incurable yen to reclaim human driftwood and build something useful with it. And Hollywood, full of overflowing with derelicts from the stage's seven seas, has given him plenty of chance to exercise his generosity. It's a rare week when he doesn't take some stranded kid under his wing, escort him to Central Casting, and argue his cause until he gets assurance that his protégé will be given work. Not long ago, to cite a couple of notable cases, he took up the cause of a once well-known stage actress who had tried to vainly for a comeback, and brought her back to the screen. He finally he landed her a break. He did the same for a starving writer. And Allah alone knows how many times he has dashed to Paramount's front office to demand a spot in one of his own pictures for some unfortunate who happened to ask him for help.

It would be interesting to see how many of those Hope protégés would remember, if Bob needed the same sort of help he had been dishing out. Hollywood, sad to relate, has never been noted for the quality of gratitude.

Don't worry about the future of Judy Garland, for that little lady seems to be opportunist enough to handle it herself. Since attaining the dateable age of sixteen, she has discovered that most of her boy friends, after blowing their allowances the day they get them, seldom have enough cash to buy a lady an expensive corsage. Judy, as you've probably heard, owns a flower shop. "Why not?" she pondered, "devise a corsage within the price range of high school boys?" The result is a two-bit item that's selling like hot cakes, and not without a profit.

Designated as the "national annual reunion," the Townsend followers packed the fairgrounds race-track grandstand yesterday and heard Dr. Townsend say, "there are soreheads and discontent in every movement of this magnitude."

"The only way to fight them is to ignore them and that's what we'll do," he added.

"Trail Blazers" Busy
The Townsend drive next year to unsent members of congress who voted against the Townsend plan bill a few weeks ago will be directed by the "Townsend Trail Blazers," a subordinate organization. "A Townsend congress in 1940" will be their slogan.

Among resolutions adopted Saturday was one urging the United States senate to vote "at the earliest practicable moment" for the adoption of a constitutional amendment "that congress shall have the power to levy taxes for old-age assistance."

Dr. Townsend said next year's convention probably would be held in Denver. The executive committee selects the convention city. Dr. Townsend said the meeting probably would be held in August after the two national political conventions.

The insurgents said they would hold their "independent" convention in some midwestern city soon.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Offhand, I can't think of a more interesting experiment in human nature than would result if Bob Hope bumped head-on into adversity. Not that I have the least doubt of his courage or ability to "take it" — my interest would be focused on the innumerable down-on-their-luckers whom he has befriended in the brief time he's been in Hollywood. I'd like to see just how much Hollywood gratitude is worth.

Fidler — Bob Hope seems to have a passion for playing the Good Samaritan, a laudable and incurable yen to reclaim human driftwood and build something useful with it. And Hollywood, full of overflowing with derelicts from the stage's seven seas, has given him plenty of chance to exercise his generosity. It's a rare week when he doesn't take some stranded kid under his wing, escort him to Central Casting, and argue his cause until he gets assurance that his protégé will be given work. Not long ago, to cite a couple of notable cases, he took up the cause of a once well-known stage actress who had tried to vainly for a comeback, and brought her back to the screen. He finally he landed her a break. He did the same for a starving writer. And Allah alone knows how many times he has dashed to Paramount's front office to demand a spot in one of his own pictures for some unfortunate who happened to ask him for help.

It would be interesting to see how many of those Hope protégés would remember, if Bob needed the same sort of help he had been dishing out. Hollywood, sad to relate, has never been noted for the quality of gratitude.

Don't worry about the future of Judy Garland, for that little lady seems to be opportunist enough to handle it herself. Since attaining the dateable age of sixteen, she has discovered that most of her boy friends, after blowing their allowances the day they get them, seldom have enough cash to buy a lady an expensive corsage. Judy, as you've probably heard, owns a flower shop. "Why not?" she pondered, "devise a corsage within the price range of high school boys?" The result is a two-bit item that's selling like hot cakes, and not without a profit.

Designated as the "national annual reunion," the Townsend followers packed the fairgrounds race-track grandstand yesterday and heard Dr. Townsend say, "there are soreheads and discontent in every movement of this magnitude."

"The only way to fight them is to ignore them and that's what we'll do," he added.

"Trail Blazers" Busy
The Townsend drive next year to unsent members of congress who voted against the Townsend plan bill a few weeks ago will be directed by the "Townsend Trail Blazers," a subordinate organization. "A Townsend congress in 1940" will be their slogan.

Among resolutions adopted Saturday was one urging the United States senate to vote "at the earliest practicable moment" for the adoption of a constitutional amendment "that congress shall have the power to levy taxes for old-age assistance."

Dr. Townsend said next year's convention probably would be held in Denver. The executive committee selects the convention city. Dr. Townsend said the meeting probably would be held in August after the two national political conventions.

The insurgents said they would hold their "independent" convention in some midwestern city soon.

Student Work Is Recognized At Youth Camp

AWARDING of 118 institute certificates in recognition of student credits for this year marked the climax Sunday afternoon of the Methodist youth encampment which had been held for the previous week at the Brillion camp grounds three miles east of Forest Junction. The Rev. O. C. Dittie, Sheboygan Falls, dean of the institute presented the awards.

Institute diplomas earned for three successive years of institute work were awarded to 12 students, namely, Harriet Schlagenhaut, Appleton; George Tinnetti, James Waterman and Jack Line, Mosinee; Vivian Tisdale, Wausau; Earl Kurtz, Fred Groll, Paul Ziemer, Elmer Boede, Russell Franke and Dorothy Vosburg, Manitowish; and June Beyer, Sheboygan. There were no students this year in the enrollment of 150 who had been credited with more than three years of work.

Presentation of certificates followed an address by Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, editor of the Epworth Herald, Chicago, who spoke on spiritual growth in answer to his question "How Big Are We?" The question, he said, was prompted by Edna Ferber's Pulitzer prize winning story, "So Big."

Closing Sermon
Dr. Gratz, who had also addressed the encampment at the Sunday forenoon service, yielded the place on the program Sunday evening to the Rev. C. W. Haywood, pastor of the Wauwatosa Methodist church, who preached the closing sermon. Evaluation of the camp, occupied for the week by the more than 150 students and faculty and by visiting delegations numbering more than 1,000 on Sunday, began after the formal closing of the institute on Sunday afternoon and continued after the evening service.

Succeeding himself as dean for the ensuing year is the Rev. O. C. Dittie, Sheboygan Falls. Likewise re-elected as manager is the Rev. Carl Hagen of Merrill. Miss Jeanne Blackburn of Mosinee is the new president of the student council of nine members, succeeding Miss Janice Pederson of Marinette.

Recreational features of the encampment which had been directed by the Rev. H. C. Blackburn of Mosinee concluded with a watermelon party following a missionary meeting on Saturday evening. A motion picture, "Uncle Sam's Final Frontier-Adventures," was shown at the meeting. Brillion students, constituting a home team, defeated a team of outside students 5 to 3 at softball on Thursday afternoon, while, after classes Friday afternoon, the entire encampment drove the 18 miles to Waverly Beach on Lake Winnebago for swimming and boating.

Young people of First Methodist church returned Sunday night after attending the camp sessions for the last week are John Huerner, Jean Pierre, Elaine Carlson, Miriam Moser, Norma Crow, Virginia Nabbefeldt, Jean Feavel, Dorothy Bailey, Rosemary Hopkins, Ruth De Braal, Janet Fullinwider and Harriet Schlagenhaut. Dr. Ira E. Schlagenhaut, district superintendent of Appleton district, was a daily morning speaker, and Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of First Methodist church, was a member of the faculty, giving a course in Bible appreciation and one on the life of Jesus. Mrs. Schlagenhaut was camp mother.

ed by a Japanese to disrobe in Tientsin because "in principle such a case could not happen." British Consul Major G. A. Herbert charged that a British subject and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Finlay, were undressed and searched before being allowed to cross the Japanese barrier surrounding the blockaded British concession here.

Mrs. Finlay was said to have been permitted to keep on only a girdle while a Chinese policeman examined her in full view of a Japanese army sentry.

Asked if he could deny the report that Mr. and Mrs. Finlay had been compelled to strip, the spokesman answered, "In principle, yes."

He acknowledged, however, that he had no report from gendarmes at the racecourse road barrier.

Rebekah Three Links club will have a meeting and basket picnic Wednesday afternoon at Pierce park. The picnic is for members and their families.

Tip Top Birthday club held its annual picnic for members and their families Sunday at Stroebes Island. Forty-five persons were present. Dinner and supper were served and a softball game entertained the adults while games provided amusement for the children.

where Major Herbert said the incident occurred Saturday.

With the British community shocked by the reported incident, the Japanese apparently were beginning to be concerned by accounts of their activities published abroad.

The army spokesman disclosed that Japanese Consul-General Shigenori Tashiro had protested to the British consul-general, E. G. Jamieson, "against the handling of news by British newspapers and newspapers by British agencies which are exaggerating the importance of small incidents, distorting facts and in some cases fabricating so-called acts of indignity against British subjects."

The situation remained unchanged as the blockade entered its thirteenth day. Begun over a local issue, the refusal of British authorities to yield four Chinese accused by Japan of killing a local official, it has grown into a test of Britain's whole policy in China.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

INSIDE OF A WATCH

Parts of the inside of a watch

In this Age of Wonders, a watch may seem just a common thing. It really is a common thing, but there is wonder in it all the same. Think of a little machine which we can keep in a pocket or fastened to the wrist, a little machine which will tell us the time of day --- if we keep it wound and in good working order.

Clocks of one kind or another have existed for thousands of years, but not watches. Christopher Columbus did not carry a watch across the Atlantic. They were not being made at the time of his first voyage. Before he died, watches were put out at Nuremberg, Germany, but few Spaniards, if any, saw one of them until after the death of Columbus in 1506.

Those early watches were made by Peter Hele, and were really little clocks. Because of their shape, and the place in which they were made, people called them "Nuremberg eggs."

Dozens of other men have worked to make better watches since that period. They have helped to build watches which are far smaller, and which keep better time.

The real power in a watch is the mainspring. It is a thin steel ribbon. When wound up, it tends to "unwind," as does the spring on a child's toy automobile.

The old custom was to open the watch case, and use a key to wind the mainspring. Less than a century has passed since stem-winding watches began to grow common.

The mainspring causes a so-called "barrel" to turn inside the watch, and teeth on the barrel make the center wheel turn around. The center wheel has teeth which cause another wheel to move, and this wheel works on still another one. These wheels, with the mainspring, make up most of what we commonly call the works or the movement of a watch.

Besides the mainspring there is a little spring of great importance. It is known as the "hairspring," and without it a watch would not keep good time. The hairspring is connected with the balance wheel, and its motion is controlled by a wheel with small hooks, known as the escape wheel. The escape wheel, balance wheel and hairspring keep the mainspring from unwinding too fast, or too slowly.

Some persons have fancied that a tick of a watch meant the passing of a second, but that isn't so. There are five ticks in a second. 300 ticks in a minute, and 18,000 ticks in an hour.

Men who repair watches have to work on screws of extremely small size. Some wrist watches have such small screws that 2,000 of them together would weigh only one ounce.

Legion Juniors Defeat Appleton In Practice Tilt

New London Squad Shows Power in Third Game of Season

New London — New London American Legion Juniors baseballers showed themselves to be a superior team this year when they trounced the Appleton Juniors 10 to 2 in a practice game here Saturday afternoon. They defeated Appleton and Kaukauna by similar decisive scores in previous games and will play a return game at Kaukauna next Friday afternoon.

Three home runs featured the offensive of the Wolf River boys Saturday as they collected 10 hits off three Appleton pitchers. Young Dave Stern toiled on the mound the whole game for New London and the rest of the team played without substitution for a test of endurance. Stern allowed but five hits and struck out 12 Appleton boys, allowing but one walk.

A clean hit over the school garage in the far left corner of the field the Gilman Horitz, a home run that would do justice to the semi-pro clubs which use the field. His circuit wallop came in the fourth with nobody on base. Ken Poppy in the sixth and Bob Houk in the eighth knocked homers over the right field fence, each with a runner ahead to count two runs.

Three Pitchers
The visitors used three pitchers, Miller starting the game and Horn and Hussy taking turns. Together they fanned seven New London batters and walked five. Klitzke knuckled in Appleton's second run in the fifth inning with a 3-base hit. In the New London line-up were: Bob Houk, catcher; Ralph Holliday, third base; Ken Poppy, left field; Hartz, first base; Wahl, center field; Weldon Harris, right field; John Sullivan, shortstop; Leonard Sullivan, second base; Stern, pitcher.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Leahy

"I'm not having much luck with my short stories, but I sold two of Junior's bright sayings last month!"

Pegler Questions New Deal Nudges Toward U. S. Fascism

New York — A month ago Raymond Clapper wrote from Washington a quiet observation that this country was now entering without fanfare "a new phase of the New Deal, in which our system of capitalism will be probed to its deepest roots."

"Some within the administration feel that fundamental changes have taken place to alter completely the nature of our system," he said, adding that, "Frankly, the opinion is general among New Deal economists that American capitalism faces a major readjustment."

The president's proposal to spend another three billion dollars "outside the budget" proves that Mr. Clapper called the turn for this program would not only buy the administration four more years of life in which to "readjust" American capitalism, but would commit the government almost irrevocably to the type of economy employed in Germany and Italy.

Private enterprise might not quite throw up the sponge but, at best, would operate almost wholly under the control and at the mercy of New Deal agencies, and the regulations to enforce this control and protect the administration's venture from failure would be vastly greater and tighter than those now in effect.

Already the government has generously relieved the states and cities of many of their responsibilities; and much of their independent character as well, under the grab-bag system of assistance which creates a recklessness to get all they can while the money lasts.

The government has built schools, bridges, golf courses and sewers for local governments whose local political leaders have thought, or pretended to think, that federal funds are simply manufactured in Washington and that these gifts need not be paid back by those communities in the form of federal taxes. Actually, no state or city has received as much as a dime for nothing from the federal treasury, and none of them ever will, because the federal government lives on what it can collect from the labor divisions and can't give away any more than it can collect from them, sometime, somehow.

Any Changes Should Be Made Out In Open
The fact may be that centralization must come into it, but it is not reasonable to see it come by stealth, and if it is true that New Deal economists generally believe that "American capitalism faces a major readjustment," then that belief should be stated in the political papers and addresses of the administration, not disguised in proposals which would have the effect without admitting the purpose.

In neither of Mr. Roosevelt's campaigns did he or anyone else have the candor to express a belief that the system was outmoded and should be scrapped and that the New Deal would proceed to do just that if elected. It is possible that the New Deal would have won on that platform, but the candidate and his political agents were too shrewd and cunning to give the opposition that proposition on which to argue.

Instead, the best the opposition could do in 1936 was to attribute purposes to the New Deal which seemed obvious from its actions to date and view them with alarm.

Applies for Permit To Operate Tavern

An application for a license to operate a tavern at 205 W. College avenue was filed in city hall Saturday by William Tornow, 123 W. College avenue. Tornow applied for Class B and FB licenses. His request will be considered by the council's license committee at its next meeting.

New Graded School Is Being Built at Symco

Symco — A new state graded school is under construction in this village, which will cost between $40,000 and $50,000, of which $12,000 will be a PWA grant.

ges, the Republicans—who were a lame duck and puny lot anyway—were laughed off the stump as political sissies crying because they were licked.

Communists, Fascists Have Much In Common

It is certain, though, that as the states and cities continue to default their duties and accept favors from the federal government at the same rate they will tend to become nominal units of government under national supervision. It is certain, also, that private business will quit trying to operate as such, but will throw in with the government and accept political management rather than go to smash resisting.

This may be the only way out now, but if so this will be fascism, American style, and the nature of the substitute for the American form of government and capitalism should be stated openly by those who are trying to create it so that the people may make the decision. Instead, up to now they have been inched along toward fascism by leaders who constantly reiterate their devotion to democracy.

The communists of the country, including those ill-concealed in the administration in the guise of New Dealers, all favor the destruction of American capitalism and the trend toward fascism, but that could cause no puzzle to anyone who bears in mind that fascism, nazism and communism, in their practical effects, are identical in all but minor variations to suit the temperaments of those who exist under those systems.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

Texas! Someone pulled strings for him, believe me."

"That's unfair, Geoff," she protested. "He's a university man. He's clever and brilliant. Didn't he work out that magnificent plan for Nola's disposal of millions? And he refused to take a cent for it."

"That's what he says."

"It is true!" she defended hotly. "He hasn't any money. And why do you insist he had to have pulled to get on with Lawson and Bates? He's young and alert and ambitious. Why wouldn't they give him a chance? You—you're prejudiced and—mean about it."

"Oh, skip it, Lyn. I suppose the fellow is smart enough. Let's not start a quarrel. Come on in now..."

"Unconvincing Life"

Lyn, responding to the pervading gaiety inside, put a smiling mask on her face and if she laughed a bit too loudly and talked a bit too excitedly, no one noticed; except Geoffrey. He became acutely apprehensive. Although rather a dull person away from his beloved ponies and polo, he still was sharp enough to sense instinctively that something had gone wrong. Recapitulating recent events increased his apprehension. Was he to lose Jocelyn after all these years? Did her apparently whimsical postponement of their marriage mean that she was undecided?

Such a possessiveness welled up inside of him as to unbalance his sense of proportion. Jocelyn was his. No other man could have her. And so his mind, comforted by fear of losing her, began to scheme.

Watching from old Mack's window at noon the next day Jocelyn saw Tally drive up, fling out of the car, and start toward the house with a scowl on his lean, dark face. In a few minutes his footsteps tramped heavily in the hallway.
